Games

Catch Pip if You Can (or Duck, Duck, Goose)

- Kids sit around in a circle, facing each other. One child is chosen to be “Pip” first.
- The child acting as Pip stands up and walks around the outside of the circle tapping each child on the head and naming them “safe.” At some point he chooses a child and says “rhinoceros”, at which point the fun begins.
- The rhinoceros must now jump up and chase the first kid around the circle, trying to tag him before he can sit down in the rhinoceros’ place. If he tags him, the first child has another go. If he fails, he becomes “Pip”.

Crocs in the Waterhole (for 6 or more kids)

- Depending on the number of kids, make at least three kids the crocodiles. Have the crocodiles form the gutter by standing in a line with wide spaces between them, facing the rest of the kids, who should be at a distance. The adult in charge (or a child) yells, “Crocs in the water-hole!” The children attempt to run through the barrier without being tagged by a crocodile. Those who get tagged are now crocs and stay in the “waterhole.” Those who make it through can make another run through the line. But anyone who was tagged must join the crocs. Continue the game until everyone has been caught.

Animal Tag

- When a tagger approaches a child in this game, he or she must squat down and say the name of an African animal for protection. If the tagger gets you first, you also become “it.”

Fun Fact!

Hyenas are known for the sound they make when they are excited that resembles laughter, hence the expression “Laughing like a Hyena”
